

CHIEF BUSINESS OFFICERS LEADERSHIP ACADEMY

Kicks off August 27 & 28, 2019!

The role of the Chief Business Officers (CBOs) in the university and college setting is demanding and ever-evolving. Higher education business administrators are leaders, part of an organization's core leadership team engaged in discussions of strategy and tactics about how to best utilize a college's assets to advance the institution's mission and goals.

To be successful, such individuals need to be visionaries, communicators, implementers, and collaborators. To meet the demands of the role, they must also be able to lead cross-functional teams.

Audience

- New and aspiring Chief Business Officers or Vice Presidents operating in a college or university setting.
- Current CBOs, Vice presidents, Directors, Managers, or Coordinators with significant responsibility for leading business administration at their institution of higher learning.
- Those who provide the administrative support and leadership for ensuring quality and success of business operations of their campuses.

Instructional Philosophy

This cohort-based program incorporates self-discovery, skill development, and knowledge creation, all with the guidance of an experienced mentor. The program is largely interactive, using a variety of small group discussions, simulations, leadership assessments, panel discussions, and case studies, all situated within the context in which the Chief Business Officer (CBO) exists. The faculty for the program will be a combination of leadership development experts and experienced CBO/VP leaders.
